About Healthi

Healthi gives you convenient access to your family's health records stored in the national My Health Record system (myhealthrecord.gov.au). The Healthi mobile app lets you access summary health information, recent healthcare visits, health provider generated documents such as hospital discharge summaries and pathology reports, medications and personally entered information such as allergies and advance care documents*.

After entering a PIN and giving consent for Healthi to access the My Health Record system using a myGov account, you can select from a list of people whose record you are authorised to access.

Healthi uses your myGov account details to access the My Health Record. A user entered PIN is used to secure the app and no health data is stored on the device. For more information go to yourhealthi.com.au.

The information displayed in the Healthi app is sourced from the national My Health Record. The number and type of documents displayed will depend on what has been uploaded by your healthcare providers or by yourself using the My Health Record consumer portal.

The documents displayed can be sourced from GPs, Public and Private Hospitals, Allied Health professionals and other healthcare providers who are registered to upload documents to the My Health Record. The types of documents that may exist are: hospital discharge summaries, event summaries, shared health summaries, pathology and diagnostic imaging reports, specialist letters, advanced care planning documents, Australian immunisation register records and Medicare/DVA benefits reports*. Documents can be located by type or by originating organisation.

The Healthi application shows your own list of allergies and any allergies listed in the shared health summary uploaded by your GP. Healthi shows your own list of medications, any prescribed medications where the prescription and dispense records were uploaded by your doctor and pharmacist, and any medications obtained through the Pharmaceutical Benefits Scheme (PBS). *

*Only documents uploaded into the consumer's My Health Record are accessible via Healthi.
