

South Australian Joint Agency Social Work Symposium

Social Work Futures

June 22-23, 2017

University of South Australia, City West Campus

aasw.asn.au

This SA symposium will bring thought leaders and challengers from across the social work spectrum together to discuss four key elements of shaping change for the future of the profession. Be part of the conversation about the future of human rights in social care, supervision models, reclaiming professional judgement and ethical deliberation. Building a sustainable and accountable professional practice for the future begins with a refocus on how, not just what, we do in social work practice.

On both days the Symposium program will focus on the main four agendas of:

- Enhancing reflective supervision
- Regulating the profession - options for accountability
- Professional ethical judgement - not tick boxes
- People and their rights in the new funding models
