Dear Participants,

On behalf of Akolade and as the Chair of the conference, I’m delighted to welcome you to the National Indigenous Mental Health & Wellbeing Forum.

We acknowledge and respect our Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander culture and its significance. As Australia’s and one of the world’s oldest cultures, it is our responsibility to ensure the welfare and development of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities and its people.

Research by the Australian Human Rights Commission shows that Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people are 5.2 times more likely to self-harm than non-Aboriginal Australians, and more than twice as likely to commit suicide. I like a vast majority of Aboriginal families in the Kimberley have been directly affected by suicide, sadly losing my grandson a few years ago. He was 16 years old.

Western Australia and the Northern Territory in particular have seen an alarmingly high rate of suicides and mental health issues among the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander population, and it is imperative that we work together to improve and strengthen the current situation.

The staggering mental health issues among Aboriginal Torres Strait Islander people calls for action. Join us for three days of learning, networking and partnering opportunities, in order to tackle the mental health issues in Australia’s Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities.

I look forward to meeting you in February 2017.

Yours sincerely,

Josie Farrer
Member for Kimberley
Australian Labor Party

Akolade is pleased to offer a selected number of scholarships for Indigenous community representatives who would ordinarily be unable to attend. For further information, email: mimmie.wilhelmson@akolade.com.au.
