

Your culture is important to us

Help us to provide the best health care for you and your family.

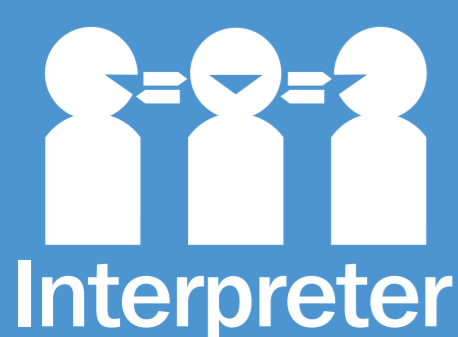

Whether you are born in Australia or overseas, we want to know about your cultural background.

We may ask you about your:

- country of birth
- language
- ethnicity
- religion.

Understanding your cultural background can help us provide you with the best health care for your needs.

You can choose what information to give us. The information is kept private, only your health care team will see it.
